Canton post, G. A. R., composed almost entirely of members of President McKinley's old regiment, the Twenty-third Ohio, will escort the body to the house.

court house and again lie in state entil it is time to leave for the First church, where the funcra exercises are to commence at o'clock, but whether the family will agree to this is not known as yet. The time allowed for the entire exer cises in the church is 45 minutes. The program is not entirely arranged for the services, but they will be simple. A discourse by Rev. C. E. Manchester of the First Methodist church, a prayer by Rev. O. E. Milligan, of the Presbyterian church, and a Scripture reading by some elergyman not yet selected. A quartette, composed of Smith, Miss Rachael Frease, F. J. Melbourne and Ralph Brown, will sing "Lead, Kindly Light," and a second quartette, composed of Misses Hattie Levinger, Fannie Levinger. Jeanette Bayhof and Kutherine Bachrens. The music to been selected last night. At the conclusion of the services in the church the slow march to the cemetery will be taken up.

The casket will be placed in the receiving vault, but before it is placed supports standing upon the stone walk leading to the vault. This will be for the purpose of allowing those who have taken part in the parade and who have been prevented by their duties from being present in the court house to have an opportunity of viewing the remains. If the present program is carried out the casket will remain on the walk outside the vault from one to two hours.

GUARD TO BE THROWN

ABOUT THE VAULT.

When finally placed inside the vault a guard will be thrown around it, and day and night until its final resting place is prepared it will be surround ed by armed men.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning not a room could be had in the hotels and there is considerable apprehension on the part of the citizens of Canton that it may be impossible to provide all of them with sleeping quarters. Provision has been made for feeding them, but if the crowds are as large as telegrams received people to expect a large number will be compelled to walk the streets all of Thursday night.

NATION'S FAREWELL TO WILLIAM M'KINLEY,

Thousands Watched Procession-Ser vices Held In Rotunda of

Capitol. Washington, Sept. 18.—Beneath the great white dome of the capitol funeral services of state were held yestorlay ever the remains of the dead president. It was eminently fitting that the services should be conducted in that beautiful rotunda, hallowed by the history of the last sad rites of two other martyrs to the cause of the republic. As befitted the occasion and the character of the man whose remains were lying cold and West Virginia; Governor Stickney, of simple. They were conducted in accordance with the rites of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which President McKinley was a lifelong member. Consiting only of two hymns, a song, a prayer, an address and a benediction, they were beautiful and solemnly impressive. Gathered around the bier were representatives of every phase of American na tional life, including the president and the only surviving ex-president of the United States, together with representatives at this capital of almost every nation on earth.

Despite the fact that no attempt had been made to decorate the interior of the rotunda, beyond the arrangements made about the catasalque, the assemblage presented a memorable sight. The sombre black of the attire of the hundreds of civilians present, was splashed brilliantly with the blue and gold of the representatives of the army and the navy and the court costumes of the diplomatic corps. As the sweet notes of Milligan to Pray, and a Third Kindly Light," floated through the great rotunda, the assemblage rose to its feet. Bared heads were bowed and eyes streamed with tears. At the conclusion of the hymn, as Rev. Dr. Naylor, presiding elder of the Washington district, rose to offer Canton, O., Sept. 18 .- The body of prayer, the hush that fell upon the clusion he repeated the immortal audience joined solemnly with him. The murmur of their voices resembled nothing less than the roll of far-dis-

Scarcely had the word amen been breathed when the liquid tone of that sweetly pleading song, "Sometime We'll Understand," went straight to the heart of every auditor. The solo was sung by Mrs. Thomas C. Noyes, of this city, and the beautiful refrain was echoed and re-echoed by the double quartette choir. BISHOP ANDREWS

PRONOUNCED THE EULOGY.

The venerable Bishop Edward G. Andrews, of Ohio, the oldest bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, then took his position at the head of the bier and began his eulogy of the life and works of William McKinley. His words were simple, but his whole heart was in every one of them. His tribute to the Christian fortitude of 'e dead president was impressive. Upon the conclusion of the sermon the audience, as if by prearrangement, joined the choir in singing 'Nearer My God to Thee." All prescut seemed to be imbued with a sentiment of hallowed resignation as the Divine blessing was asked by the Rev. W. H. Chapman, acting pastor of the Metropolitan M. E. church, upon both the living and the dead.

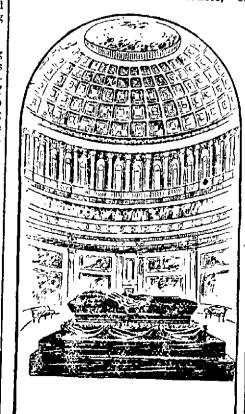

Mrs. McKinley, bereft of husband and prostrated by her overwhelming sorrow, did not attend the services at

It was deemed wise by those now nearest and dearest to her that she should not undergo the ordeal her attendance would entail upon her. She remained at the White House, comforted by every attention that loving thoughtfulness could sugest.

Both sides of Pennsylvania avenue from the White House to the capitol were massed with an impenetrable cordon of people, wishing in this way to pay final tribute of love and respect for the dead, when the body was conveyed from the White House to the capitol. As the funeral cortage, escoited by troops representing every department of the nation's martial solvice and by represnetatives of religous and civic organizations, passed down the broad thoroughfare to the colemn notes of the Dead March from Saul by the bands, the sorrowing people bared their heads despite the rain, and many tears bespoke their grief more eloquently than words. It was a silent throng. Not a sound was heard. With aching hearts all remembe sung by this quartette had not licred that only a few months ago the dead president, then in the fulness of that same thoroughfare to be inaugu-

As with solemn and cadenced tread the procession moved down the aveinside the casket will be rested upon nue, the people recognized as one of the mourners their former president, Grover Cleveland, who had come to pay his tribute to his successor. They recognized, too, their new president, upon whom the responsibilities of chief executive had been thrust so unexpectedly. Among the hundreds of other distinguished persons who were in attendance upon the funeral services were Governor Gregory, of Rhode Island; Governor Yates, of Illinois; Governor Hill, of Maine; Governor Crane, of Massachusetts; Governor Aycock, of North Carolina; Governor White, of

At halfpast 12 the crowd began to file through the rotunda and during the six hours in which the body was lying in state it is estimated that 55,000 people viewed the remains.

A NUMBER WERE

INJURED IN A PANIC. Just at 1 o'clock a frightful calamity was narrowly averted at the east front of the capitol. For hours the vast throng of people had been massed in front of the capitol awaiting an opportunity to enter the retunda. When the doors were opened tens of thousands of people rushed al nost frantically to the main staircase. The police and military guards were swept aside and almost in a twinkling there was a tremendous crush at the foot of the great staircase. The immense throng swept backward and forward like the surging of a mighty sea. Women and thildren, a few of the latter habes in aims, were caught in the crowd and many were badly hurt. Strong men

After the crush had been abated upon the stair-case and plaza immediately in front of it were found tattered pieces of men's and women's wearing apparel of all kinds, crushed hats, gloves, and even shoes. Watches, pocketbooks, keys and knives were picked up.

When the remains of the dead president were finally closed forever to the view of Washington people the cavalry escort again was formed and conreved them to the special train.

Baltimore, Sept. 18.—After clearing Washington all was darkness. The train seemed to be running through a tunnel, so bleak was the night. Now and then the faces of a little mournful group, bare headed, at the side of the track, could be seen by the light from the death chamber as the train he was being escorted down the stairs flashed by, and as the little villages between Washington and Baltimore were passed the sound of tolling bells came faintly to the heavy-hearted mourners aboard.

Sight of the Emblems of Mourning in the Court House -Counsel Enters Plea of not Guilty.

Buffalo, Sept. 18.—For the second time Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, was arraigned before Judge Edward K. The accused will be tried in the supreme court next Monday morning. Crowds flocked to the city hall to see the prisoner, but the uncertaintv surrounding the question as to whether or not counsel could be secured for him saved congestion of the court room and corridors of the hall. The most notable incident of the day was the hissing of the prisoner by the crowd which surged around him as still draped in mourning garb. In a late English paper we note under the head of police court proceedings the case where a hired man quit his employer after working four days of his contract period of one year and was hauled up before the court and fined $20 and costs. Just suppose we had that sort of a law in America! In this case the man was to receive $111 for his year's work and board himself. The wonder is he worked the four days.

Why could not the weather prophets have put us on to this snap?

Possibly it does not pay in the mere matter of dollars and cents to paint the farm home and the farm buildings, but the doing of it will do something to remove that tired feeling common to many people who live on the farm. A man may very properly wear a 10 cent hat, a 40 cent shirt and a 35 cent pair of overalls while doing his farm work, but his home—the place where he lives -should not be rigged out on the 35 and 40 cent basis.

OTHER MEN'S WIVES.

There is a great deal of very foolish stuff written and printed about the peculiar burdens of the farmer's wife. Now, for the life of us, we cannot see why the wife of the town mechanic and day laborer does not have just as hard a row to hoe as the wife of the rian on the farm. Many of this latter class are compelled to take in washing and do menial work for other people in order to keep the family going, and society is less kind to them than it is to the farmer's wife. Not a few of these town women have cads for husbands-loafers, drunkards and no-'counts-and with no cow, no garden, no poultry yard, no timber lot; they stick on the dividing line between the poorhouse and starvation year in and year out. Let somebody pity the mother who lives in town who is barred socially because of poverty, who can hardly garb her children so that they can go to the public school er to the church, while her husband is rearing against the existing order of things on some dry goods box down

A SECONDARY FERTILIZATION. The actual facts appear to be that the silks of an ear of corn will remain in a receptive state—susceptible to the act of pollination-for a much longer period than we thought possible, there being abundant evidence all through the corn belt where the tassels of the corn were destroyed by the hot winds of July, in which fields the fertilization was so arrested that it was most imperfectly accomplished, but a few kerrels being fructified, that a later developed pollen supply brought about i by rains on undeveloped stalks has completely and perfectly fertilized. these imperfect ears, the silks 20 days after the normal date of pollenizing still being receptive and ready to perform their important mission. This will result in the curious fact of an ear of corn having a few ripe and hard kernels upon it, while the rest of the corn kernels will be still soft. This curious condition of the cornfields we have never before noted and is of more than passins interest, as such fields will, if favored with a good ripening period, produce a much larger crop of corn than seemed possible in July. Nature is merciless in her, wrecking moods, but infinitely compensatory and restorative in all her bealing processes.

CHOOSING A WIFE.

We are requested by a young farmer, unmarried, to give a few suggestions regarding the choice of a wife. While this is not a strictly agricultural topic it is still true that the selection of the right sort of woman as a man's life partner in his farm work has more to do with his success or failure than almost any other one thing. Still, at the same time we feel that any advice given on this subject is entirely useless, for it is very rare indeed that people, even sensible ones, use any sense about their matrimonial affairs. When Cupid takes a man in hand, all his other genii and protecting angels take at once to the woods and leave him to his fate, but if our friend is really disposed to look at this matter from a sensible standpoint we might say this much: First, the woman selected as his wife should be herself physically healthy and come of a healthy family. Too much importance can hardly be placed upon this one thing. More might be said upon this point, but we leave it for our friend to draw his own couclusions. Second, a good deal depends upon just what he wants a wife for. If he wants a worker, a woman to do the housework after a fashion, do the milking, feed the pigs and help in the harvest and hayfield, he had better go down to Castle Garden and propose to one of the brawny and unspoiled daughters of Ceres just arrived from some foreign country, where necessity compels the woman and slavery to be connected and where conditions prevent the development of woman upon the American plan. On the other hand, if he wants a companion as well as a helpmeet, a wife who will make him a home in the largest sense, one who will aid him in a hundred other ways than with her hands-he will be apt to which have prevailed and the heavy | find her among the many schoolma'ams load of fruit carried the plums are not of his locality or in some neighbor's as large as usual, it being, even with | daughter who, carefully trained in the cultivation and mulching, difficult un- arts of domestic economy, is her mothder the conditions to insure a normal er's mainstay at the old home. Any girl who has been well trained by a competent mother, who is kind and helpful to those in her own home, who possesses that sense of culture and refinement which so graces the American woman and who is not averse to life on the farm will make our friend a good wife, proprice is going to very greatly restrict | vided there exists a mutual liking. If the consumption of corn, and no one he will look out along these lines, he will easily find the girl and not have to go very far either. SHEEP BREEDS.

We are asked which is the best breed of sheep for the farmer who wants to keep a small flock on his farm. This question of breeds is so much a matter of personal fancy that it practically resolves itself into the assertion that there is no best breed of anything. We may say this, however: Any breed is better than no breed. The Merinos are among the hardiest of our sheep. They Cotswolds have a large mutton carcass and coarse, long wool and are especially valuable as producers of high priced early lambs. The Shropshires are a good all round breed for the average farmer, hardy, fair mutton animals, giving a heavy fleece of good quality. Stated in another way which will be readily understood, it may be said that the Merinos are the Berkshires, the Cotswolds the Chester Whites and the Shropshires the Poland-Chinas of the sheep family.

GRANDFATHER'S WAY.

Construct sm in agricultural methods is all right up to a certain point, but we still always like to see a man doing a little experimenting with new methods and new things. Grandfather's way was the best for pioneer conditions without doubt, but his way of doing things will hardly pay in these days of high priced land and high priced farm labor. A modern farmer cannot afford to make his own axe helves, fork handles and bob sleighs or let his stock run to the haystack to save the work of feeding it, or make his own sorghum for sweetning, or have his own grist of wheat ground, or butcher his own meats, or make his own butter or have his wife make his wamus and overalls, for modern machinery and co-operative effort can do all these things at so much less cost. The wide awake man will let others do all these and many other things and will devote his energies along the line of growing better crops and keeping better stock.

HIGH PRICED POTATOES.

Our old friend and etandby, the potato, is putting on lots of style this year all ever the country. The tuber, ignominiously bauled out for nog feed last spring in many places, now trots in the same class with Jonathan apples and, from being the most common of food for all the commor as well as uncommon people, ranks as a high! priced delicacy in all the markets of the country. The communic problem of what to use as a substitute for the potato is confronting the breadwinners everywhere. As a matter of fact, there is no satisfactory substitute to be had. The south may get along with the sweet potato, but the north won't. More turnips will be used more outmeal, beaus and commeal. In any event it is bound to be a new experience for the masses of the American people, for at $1 to $1.50 a lambel the pertate is the most expensive food to l•⁴ had.

New York Evening Journal as follows: "This trip to New York I have had under consideration for several years. I know I have a pretty tough job before me, nevertheless I expect to be successful. I know that I will encounter almost insufferably cold water, aggravating seas and will probably suffer some from cramp, nausea and all the other things that generally attend a long distance swim in deep sea water.

"I will try to spend from five to seven hours a day in the water, swimming continuously during that time. I will make my course straight across Massachusetts hay to Race point. From there I will follow along the Cape Cod coast, down across Nantucket shoals and thence down the sound, passing, through Hell Gate into the East river to my destination at the Battery.

WELCOMES THE CZAR

FRANCE PREPARING A MAGNIFICENT GREETING.

Fetes, Reviews, Parades and Other Manifestations of Honor For the Republic's Imperial Ally-tauses of the Visit.

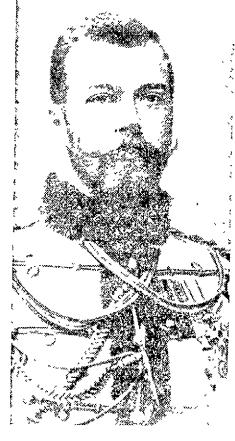

"Vive le tsar! Vive la tsarine! Vive monsieur le president!"

Such are the cries that France is practicing just now, for in a few days she will be called on to welcome her very good friend and ally, Nicholas II., emperor of Russia, and his consort, and although France is a republie and has been one for thirty odd years, it is a right royal welcome that is being prepared for Nicholas. Incidentally it may be said that the visit of her imperial guests may help to keep the Gauls on a republican basis.

Czar Nicholas is already on his way to France. He is stopping meanwhile to greet his Danish relatives and, sad to relate from a French standpoint, to exchange greetings with King Edward and with the war lord of Germany and to review the fleet of the latter. However, these unpleasant episodes, the only drops of bitterness in Plance's cup of happiness, will be forgotten when President Loubet and Czar Nicholas meet off Dunke que on Sept. 18.

The czar is journeying aboard his racht, the Standart, escorted by another yacht that bears for a title the Russian equivalent for Polar Star, and by the cruiser Svetlana. He will be met by the president, who will go out for that purpose on a torpedo boat. The two heads of state will then from the bridge of the Standart review an immense Prench fleet, gathered from the channel, the Mediterianean and the Atlantic. Later there will be a luncheon at Dunkerque, and during the same afternoon the president and his royal guest will proceed to Complegue, a small town in the north of France. Here a chateau is being magnificently prepared for the entertainment of the emperor and his party.

On the 19th the czar will proceed to the ancient city of Reims, near which he will witness a sham battle that will close the grand annual maneuvers of the French army. The 20th is held open as a day of repose, according to the latest accounts, but it may be that then the czar will graciously consent Paris. Pinally, on the 21st, Nicholas will proceed to a vast plain near Reims, where he will review about 150,000 picked French soldiers. This review is expected to be the grandest and most imposing ever held in France. On the 21st the czar will part with his "great and good friend," the president of France, and will return to Russia.

This is but a bare outline of the main events of the ezar's visit to his ally. To detail all the fetes, the shows, the reviews, the illuminations, the decorations and other mantestations of honor would require many columns.

Expensive beyond precedent will be the Russian visit, since extensive and exhaustive preparation in ist be and are being and to insure the safety of the guests. Decerations, lay, hand extravague errobeme put up to show the joy Prepelmen five at the visit of their (J. At Cong che alone, it is said, a mill er frau's has been expended to fit up the chitoan. Should the czar go to 1 aris, as the capital eagerly hopes, the expense will, aithough cheerfully borne, be redoubled, Nicholas' coming to I rance at this time is not without political significance. It is whispered on the bourses and exchanges that Russia is in need of money and that the visit is but the prelude to the floating of a new Russian loan in France. On the other hand, even if this be true, the moral quid proquo in the form of support that Nicholas has to offer to Loubet is well worth any sacrifice, however great, to the present government of the republic.

Opponents of the Loubet administration, and they are dangerous, have openly declared that under him France has lost prestige abroad. It is now generally conceded that the simple honest, kindly president has, by get ting Nicholas to visit France, outwit ted his enemies. It is said that the em peror of Russia is much more favora bly inclined toward Loubet than he was toward his predecessor, the spec tacular Faure. However that may be Nicholas has certainly shown by his present action that he is still the stanch ally of France and of the present government.

THE ARTFUL SALAD.

THE BRIDE ELECT LEARNS SOME OF ITS CLEVER QUIRKS AND TURNS.

Costly and Substantial Meat Salads Are the Prose of Safad Building. There Are Others In Which Dellcate Fancy May Revel Galore.

Ruth Ames thought she knew a good deal about salads. She had had a girl's usual experience along this line, and had compounded mayonnaise and French dressings, and had prepared chicken, lobster and even salmon salad. Potato salad, too, she could make, and tomato salad, so that she flattered herself she had a pretty good knowledge of this branch of cookery, which, to tell the truth, she regarded as quite as much ornamental as useful,

It was in the warm days that Ruth began to learn how many salads were Chicken salad and lobster salad she regarded rather as expensive as company salad, but there were others that were no less attractive in appearance and taste which were far less costly. DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

Why Make a Curiosity Shop of the House!-Household Ways.

Were I a housemaid I would with all my soul appeal against the growing fondness for crowding sitting rooms with bric-a-brac, photo frames, silver and china, that have no mortal mission in life but to cumber the ground. Only those who have the task of dusting these every day can realize how truly burdensome this duty can become.

But so long as today's customs rule in the household this will be an ever present bugbear, and the only alleviation is to devise the best means for doing it.

The most labor saving and therefore the easiest way of doing domestic work requires not only that the hands be trained and skilled, but that the head bring thought to bear on the tasks which the bands perform. Take, for instance, this all important duty of "dusting" a room already referred to, one that must needs be done every day. The unskilled and unthinking worker goes through the performance mechanically and leaves almost as much dust behind her as she removes.

The skilled worker, on the other hand, will have two or three different dusters to use-one for removing the first dust on larger pieces of furniture, stained borders, etc.; then she will linve one for use on picture frames, door moldings, ledges and china in damp duster or chamois leather wrang until nearly dry works words will have a fine soft d ... for the vigorous rabbing that gives the funcbrightness to polished speakers, mirrors, etc. But this takes a longer time, do you say? Not at all, as what is dusted in this manner needs not to be gone over again.

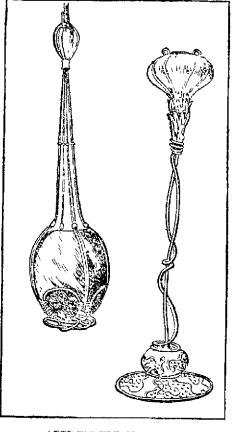

Common salt strewn over carpets is an excellent cleanser, as it gathers the dust and prevents the latter from rising, while it scours at the same time.

To wash a carpet with clear water that has been tinctured with ammonia after it has been swept both refreshes and helps it to wear longer; but pray get the dust out first, or after a state of the carpet will be worse than the first. And so with all domestic Bowed with grief for the loss of President McKinley, Ohio has no heart for thoughts or expressions of partisanship. Chairman Dick's letter decent men of all parties.—Ohio State to the Republicans of the state advising that all political activity be suspended for the present will meet with universal approvai.

R. A. POLLOCK,

Today Stark county stands first among the mourners beside the bier of William McKinley. Thousands of tear-stained faces are being bent for a moment over the quiet face of the man who was one of the noblest of so happy as when taking his fellow ters will bear repetition: citizen by the hand.

The scheme of presidential succession provided by the Forty-ninth congress in 1886 is as follows: Vice president. Secretary of state. Secretary of treasury. Secretary of war. Attorney general. Secretary of the navy. Secretary of the interior. Secretary of agriculture.

According to the constitutional provision that only native born Americans shall be eligible to the office of president, the Hon. James Wilson, sicretary of agriculture, is the only member of the cabinet who could not serve in the order of succession. The list of cabinet officers, with their places of birth, is as follows:

Secretary Hay, Indiana. Secretary Gage, New York. Secretary Root, New York.

Philip King, the financial and commercial statistician, pays an eloquent tribute to President McKinley in his weekly review of the business situation. "Naturally moderate in all things," says Mr. King, "there never was the slightest fear that he would do anything hastily or rashly, or would do anything, in fact, except enforce the policies to which his party was pledged or which was clearly demanded by abiding public opinion. His instinct for ascertaining what this abiding public opinion was, was greater than that possessed by any other American president. Beyond all this, there was never another President whose amiable disposition, like Mr. McKinley's so endeared him to political friends and foes alike. and who was thus able to avoid friction in his cabinet and to secure assent from congress to his measures. The most savage and obdurate partisans, men of the fierce type of Vest and Tillman, called on him to formally throw down the gage of battle and went away with sheathed swords and with faces wreathed in smiles. It may be said that these are not the loftiest qualities that a President can display but without them the head of a party or a nation, no matter how commanding his genius, can accomplish little: and they are exactly the Presidential qualities which business interests most admire and desire."

THE UNBEARABLE LENTZ.

It remained for the unbearable Lentz to charge the crime of Czolgosz to the influence of politics, and plainly shows that he belongs to the school that graduated Emma Goldman. Herr Most and the Polish assassing who attempted the life of the President. The friends of Lentz, if he had such, should blush for his unpatriotic utterances that at once proclaim him in feeling at least with the Anarchist, without the nerve of Czolgosz to carry out the logical sequence of his reasoning. His maliguity against President McKinley has always been in evidence, and this last exhibition will emphasize still further his unenviable position in the opinion of the

Mr. Renie and his best man came next, slightly in advance of Miss Deck and the bridesmaid. More flower girls followed, and then came the second bridal party, in the same order as the preceding one. The flower girls were Rosa Kracker, Florence Deck, Hilda Miller and Nora Rhine.

The church was prettily decorated. The vast edifice was filled with the friends of the two young couples, forming one of the largest congregations ever present on the occasion of a marriage in the church.

Immediately after the ceremony the brides and grooms and their attendants were driven to a photographer's studio, and, after sitting for photographs, went to the Deck residence in East Tremont street, where a reception was held from 12 till 2 o'clock. Both Mr. Deck and Mr. Renie are bartenders, the former being employed by William Myers and the latter by Frank Hoch. They will reside in Massillon.

Steel Strike a Benefit to all Union Labor.

JOHN JENKINS SEES IT

While Admitting That the Union has Gained Nothing, Mr. Jenkins Insists That it was no Victory for the Trust-Says the Strike Will be a Lesson in Organization.

John T. Jenkins, known in organized labor circles as "the wheel-horse of the Amalgamated," does not think that the manner in which the strike of the steel workers has ended will seriously affect organized labor.

"The strike," said he Monday, 'has ended in neither victory nor defeat for either side. It is true the trust has gained some few little things, but it can in no sense be termed a victory for the corporation. Not being a victory, naturally it is more or less a blow to the Amalgamated, but it is a blow from which it will rally and redouble its strength. The strike has also taught to the toilers of the nation that organization is imperative. A poor organization is better than none. The steel strike has demonstrated that an organization of reasonable strength cannot successfully cope with the great trust, and has awakened the disorganized to a realization of the two-fold helplessness of their condition. Organization is the workingman's only salvation. We must be as strong as the corporation that employs us. We must educate those sold at auction, piecemeal or other- numbers till our membership shall mense expense that transportation include all the toilers of the land. direct benefit to the steel workers, will thus prove a benefit to all the working people of the nation." Mr. Jenkins says he attributes the

'If it had been left to the officials of the union and the trust," remarked The capacity of the tank in factory he, "it would have been better for No. 2, which is considerably smaller labor. It was the intermeddling of than the makers guaranteed it to be, persons not affected that largely made complete victory impossible.

Peter Smith, president of the Trades and Labor Assembly, views the situation in the same light as Mr. Jenkins. "It will help to open the eyes of the unorganized," said he.

"Our Lady of the Snows," as Kipling called the Domin on of Canac', is, despite that chilly designation, resparing a very warm welcome for the Dulte and Inclass of Cornvall and York. The slop that holds the royal visitors has been escorted on its tour of the world by his majesty's ships June and St. George. In the gulf of St. Lawrence the three vessels will be met by the British North American fleet under the command of Vice Admiral Sir Frederick Bedford. The entire imposing array of ships will steam to the ancient city, where the duke and duchess will be landed. The itinerary included Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Vancouver. Victoria, Toronto, St. John, N. B. Halitax and other cities and towns en route. It is now said, however, that the duchess will not be able to take the trip with her husband owing to the delicate condition of her health. The annoncement has created great d'appo niment, especially among the ladies of the Dominion, who had looked forward to greeting their future queen, Among the most interesting events of the visit will be the presentation of a gift by the lades of Canada to the duchess. It has been decided to present a fur cape made of the famous skins of which Canada is justly proud.

Prominent among the persons who will help to make the visit of the Duke and Duchess of York a success will be the governor general of the Dominion, the Harl of Minto, and his charming wife. They will be ably assisted by Sh Wilfrid Laurier, premier of the present government, and Lady Laurie . The duke and duchess will be otherally received at Quebec by the governor general, the members of the federal and provincial governments and the civic authorities, of the city. After the presentation of an address of welcome and of the freedom of the city on the landing steps the party will proceed to the citable, where they will be the guests of the governor general. From that time on the coromonics will be unending from one part of the laud to another.

At Quebec the duke will lay the foundation stone of the monument to those of Canada's sons who have died while fighting in South Africa for the mother country. Tive thousand children, clad and arranged to represent a living union jack, will sing a welcome to the duke. At Ottawa be will unveil a magnificent memorial to his grandmother, and while in the same city a great lumbermen's pageant will be held to show him the importance of that branch of the Dominion's industry. It is understood that John R. Booth, Ottawa's lumber king, will be knighted during the royal stay in the capital.

During the tour by the duke he will probably confer the honor of knight hood upon the mayors of Quebec, Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Halifax, St John and possibly upon other dignitaries of Canada. It is believed by many. however, that the loyal Canadians will be disappointed when the number of

The island province, although not a part of the Dominion, will join in the videeme to the duke and his party, and eight British warships, three flying the French tricolor and possibly one or two with the stars and stripes, will arely St. John's celebrate.

Stockholm's Rattail Bounty.

Last 1 chang the municipal council of Stockholm passed an ordinance offering to pay 10 ore (about 3 cents) for every ratial that was brought to the police headquarters. Rats had become so a perious as to imperil the health as well as the comfort of the population, and sanitary officials attributed to them the spread of contagious diseases. Therefore a war of extermination was decided upon, a bounty was offered, and up to July 31 more than 100,000 talls have been brought in by the rat catchers. Several men went into the business and advertised in the newspapers, offering to rid premises that were afflicted by the nuisance for a nominal fee. Thus they doubled their earnings and made a profitable thing of it. The war is still going on, but the bounty has been reduced to 5 ore per rat, which is about a cent and a half in our money. Even at that price the rat enteliers can male a good living.-Chicago Record Herald.

RIGHT HON, HERLERT JOHN GLADSTONE. He is the best known living member of his famous family. Mr. Gladstone is, as his tather was, one of the leaders of the Liberal party. He is now forty-seven years old and has been in public life since 1880.

Like his famous father and the other members of his family, Mr. Gladstone is a graduate of Oxford. He gained various honors during his university career, and from 1877 to 1880 he was a history lecturer in Keble college. In the latter year Mr. Gladstone contested a seat in parliament and has held it ever since. He represents the city of Leeds. From 1880 to 1881 Mr. Gladstone was one of his father's secretaries, in 1885 he was a lord of the treasury, in 1886 financial secretary of the war office, from 1892 to 1894 undersecretary of the home office and from 1894 to 1895 first commissioner of works. Since 1805 the Liberal party has been out of power, and he has held no office. Since 1809 Mr. Gladstone has been chief whip of his party. The duty of a "whip" is to see that all members of a party are in their places when an important measure is to be acted upon. The office is profficial and is not known in American politics.

Mr. Gladstone's abilities, although real, have been overshidowed by those of his eminent father. He is a steady, earnest, hardworking man of great independence and wirning personality. His few enen ics needse him of lack of brilliance and initiative, but it has always been felt by his friends that he has lived in "the snadow of a great

ROYAL TROUBLES.

Sister of Englard's King Has Sought a Home on the Continent.

Affairs in the royal family of England are not as calm and unrufiled as is generally beneved, for recent dispatches tell the story of a quarrel as real as any that takes place in less exalted circles. The disturber of the royal peace of mind is the wido ved Princess Henry of Battenberg, youngest chird of the late queen and sister to the Ling. Princess Henry is sometimes known as the Princess Beatrice.

For some time past the relations of Princess Henry with the rest of her family have been strained. She resided until recently at Osborne cottage, Isle of Wight, near Osborne House, the residence of the late queen. As is well

PRINCESS HENRY OF BATTENBERG. known, Princess Beatrice was the favorite child of her majesty, and it may be owing to this fact that the princess took it upon herself to remove from Osborne House to her own cottage some articles of great value, including some priceless china.

These proceedings did not meet with the approval of the Prince of Wales and others of the princes' relations. and when Victoria died the storm broke. Princess Henry has now fled to the continent and has sought a home with the widowed Eugenle, ex empress of France.

CUBA'S PROSPERITY.

EXPORTS CLIMBING UPWARD BY THE MILLION.

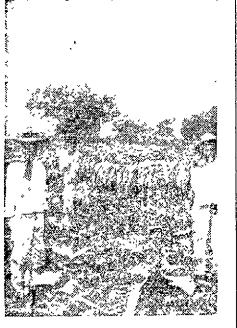

Tobacco, the Great Staple of the Island, Sharing in the Rise-Bow the Crop Is Grown and Prospects of the Trade.

If any doubt lingers in the mind of a Cuban as to the benefits gained by his country by our interference in its affairs, the figures concerning Cuban commerce just given out by our government will probably dispel it. Statistics show that for the seven months ending Jan. 31, 1901, as compared with the corresponding portion of the preceding year, there was an increase of 35 per cent in Cuban exports and a decrease of 6.4 per cent in imports from the United States. The same statisties show that imports from every other country, except in a few cases, have decreased in value, while the exports have gone up.

During the seven months ended Jan. 31, 1901, the value of the tobacco and manufactures of the leaf exported from Cuba reached a total of $18,572,532, an increase over the same period of 1990 of $5,016,057. It is easy to see how the tobacco grower shares and will continue to share in the prosperity of the Pearl of the Antilles. It is but proper that he should do so, for, as a recent writer puts it, "the small tobacco farmer is going to be a factor of consequence in the western and central part of the island." The present season is sowing time on Cuban plantations. This begins in June and lasts into October. In December comes the barvest, and the picking of the leaf, its baling, curing, etc., occupy rural Cuba until May.

Although, as every one knows, the soil of Cuba is unequaled for fertility, Cuban tobacco growing is not easy work. It requires constant care, for the enemies of the tender leaves are many. Too much moisture or too much dryness easily ruins tobacco, and the greatest care is needed to protect it from the vivijagna, a very large and voracious ant, which is quite capable of destroying a crop in a few hours. the plant.

In sugar enitivation we have been able to teach the Cubans many things worth knowing, but it must be confessed that in tobacco growing they do not need our assistance. As most of the work must be done by hand and as the science of getting the most and best leaves was perfected long ago little remains to be learned. We can still tench them something about economy of production, but even there the American tobacco grower has liede if any the advantage of Lis Cuban competitor.

Quite an amount of land capable of producing good tobacco temains unoccupied, and even in the well cultivated districts extension is possible. There is no uniformity of opinion as to the future increase in tobacco growing on the island. Conservative guessers say, after careful figuring, that with proper encouragement the present crop may be doubled within the next ten or twelve years.

While the big Havana cigar factories have large tracts of tobacco land which they cultivate, the greater portion of the product is grown by the "gunjiro," or small farmer. The latter, like the man in the poem, "wants but little here below." He wishes, first of all, protection for his product from outside competition, especially that from Porto Rico. According to the "guajiro," Porto Rican tobacco is "mmy male." and will corrupt the better Cuban leaf. This, by the way, is denied by the people of our island. Next the "guajiro" wants just now a chance to prove that he and his fellows can govern Cuba without any assistance from the Yankees.

The next want of the man who grows tobacco in Cuba is a government that will build good reads for him. The farmer suffers severely from the lack of adequate means of communication. He has awasened to the cyying need of better highways and eyes with approval the beginning made by the present American administration. After roads are built, or before, the "guajiro" must have, to insure his future prosperity, increased banking and warehouse facilities. Af present he relies too much upon the large estate owner and the professional money lender. Stable country banks are a crying need of the island. Finally, the "guajiro" wants peace and a chance to live his life according to his own customs and manners.

It must be understood that the Cuban farmer is not everfoud of work. He is, however, capable of exerting himself like a Trojan when he sees an immediate end in view. He needs encouragement to keep it up.

The expressions of joy and thanksgiving that the church had reached so successful a stage, were tinged with the sorrow which all felt over COPY SENT TO MRS. M'KINLEY, the great national calamity. The regular mass took place at 7:30 o'clock. Solemn high mass was celebrated at 10:30 o'clock. It closed with the singing of the Te Deam. At this service the Rev. H. V. Kaempker preached. He paid the highest tributes to President McKinley, expressed sympathy for the afflicted wife and denounced anarchy in most vigorous terms. He asked the prayers of the congregation for the repose of the dead President's

In the evening there were vespers, upon the President's devotion to his wife and his mother. No man, declared Father Treiber, who showed such would be anything but a good man. To Mrs. Ida McKinley: The Rev. J. F. Kuebler and the Rev. Father Alten, of West Brookfield, assisted in conducting these services.

At St. Joseph's Catholic church, low mass was conducted at 6:30 o'clock and high mass at 8:30 o'clock Sunday and language is beggarly to express morning, by the Rev. Father Kuebler. In his sermon, Father Knebler also denounced anarchy and expressed sorrow over the President's death.

Tributes were paid to President Me-Kinley by the ministers of all the ingly followed him to levels of political churches in Massillon yesterday. In life, the noblest ever known in this nearly every case the favorite hynns of the dead President were sung and emblems of national mourning added his official life that were to come. solemnity to the services.

The seating capacity of the Christian church was taxed to its utmost Sunday night to accommodate the large congregation which gathered to hear the Rev. F. H. Simpson's sermon "A Nation's Sorrow." A large sized picture of the President, heavily draped, was on the platform and Mr. McKinley's two favorite hymns. "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Lead Kindly Light," arranged for a male quartette, were rendered, together with other special music. The address was in part as follows: "It was a cruel fate that struck him down in the heydey of his popularity, and at the very moment when he was receiving the plaudits of a multitude assembled to do him honor. No President since Lincoln's day has held a warmer place in the hearts of the people. Not only has he worn the flower of a blameless life, but he has ever been an active, positive force on the side of social righteousness. It is a dreadful reflection that our modern social order could produce a wretch so base as to have it in his heart to seek the death of such a man."

Speaking of the crime, Mr. Simpson said: "Anarchy is treason. It takes a potential murderer and makes him a traitor as well as a murderer. The murderous plot may fail, but the treason stands self-confessed. An attack upon a federal officer, motived not by personal enmity, but by an avowed purpose of destroying thereby the whole system of government of which he is a part, is in reality an armed rebellion against the government. Whether it is murder in the first degree depends on the success of the attempt; but in any case it is insurrection, and therefore treason. This crime is an overtact of rebellion against the United States, and should receive the punishment of treasondeath, even had our beloved President lived."

The Rev. C. M. Roberts announced Es at the Sunday morning service at St. | 58 Timothy's church that his sermon next Sunday will concern the life of the dead President. His remarks yes-NewspaperhrchivE®

The resolutions follow:

> Your neighbors and friends of the City of Massillon, in this your hour of grief and the whole Nation's calamity, tender you their profound and heartfelt sympathy. Words are weak what we feel. The Nation has lost a loved and trusted President; we have lost in addition a familiar and gener ous friend. The Nation has lost a peerless statesman; we have lost a wise and prudent fellow-citizen. The Nation knew and trusted with unquestioning faith his greatness in the councils of state; we knew his supreme greatness in the common walks of life. The Nation loyally and lovworld. It hoped to follow him to yet other and nobler levels in the years of We hoped that he would return to us with his more than royal honors upon him, sit by our firesides, meet us in the streets, and give our home-life the blessing of his presence and his matchless personality. But you have lost more than the people of the Nation when they lost their trusted and revered chief; have lost more than we when we lost our beloved and familiar friend; you have lost one in whom the name of husband has found an exemplar, who gave it a new dignity. and a fresh nobility amongst men. We tender you a deeper sympathy than words can convey, and pray that in all your years yet to come the Almighty God will give you conrage of patience and the joy of hope, and the Nation the inspiration of the blessed and saintly memory of the people's martyred chief and our friend

DAVID H. MURPHY, Newark, O. Kinley, offers a problem in pronunciation to nine-tenths of those who attempt to speak it. It is one of those names which the English alphabet cannot spell phonetically and which the average English-speaking person stumbles over in trying to express after hearing it spoken by a Russian. Written according to its sound, the name Czolgsoz, or its nearest equivalent, is "Tchollgosch," or more broadly speaking,"Shollgosch,""Cz" is represented in the Russian alphabet by a character which is pronounced sch, the same as though one were suppressing a sneeze—"tch." The next two letters, "ol," are prononneed in combination as though written "oll," and the remaining letters of the name, "gosz," have the sound of "gosch."

Paris, Sept. 18.—The festivities in connection with the visit of the Czar of Russia opened yesterday, when President Loubet left this city for Dunkirk. Since the assassination of Mr. McKinfey the government has decided to guard the entire track from One Hundred Men Had Just Decakirk to Compigne with troops. These will line the miles from this place, caused the route from the station to the palace and will form a complete cordon

Mr. Roosevelt expressed the hope and expectation that every member would serve throughout his term, for, he said, he tendered Anarchists Know Their Lives the appointments as if he had just been elected to the presidency and was forming an original cabinet. The President said, however, there was one difference between the present tender and that of an original offer, stances they were not at liberty to de-

Upon being asked by a member if resignations should be formally presented in the usual manner the President answered that his action at this meeting had precluded the necessity for presenting resignations. The discussion turned upon the policy of the administration, and Mr. Roosevelt announced that he regarded the speech of the late President at the Buffalo Pan-American exposition the day previous to the tragic shooting, as outlining the policies to be followed by the administration. MADE HER FORTUNE.

Boarding House Steaks That Grew Tender Luder a Four Ton Hammer. "Speaking of luck," said a reminiscent man, "reminds me of how fortune came to a boarding house keeper in a mill town where I once lived. There came to the house when he first struck the town a new millhand. This boarder seemed at first just like any other young man with a good appetite, out of whom the profit to be made was likely to be small, but it was speedily discovered that he was a man of ability and promise, who was likely to get on at the mill. He made great progress at the works. It wasn't long before he was at the head of the section of the forge department there, the boss, in fact, of the four ton hammers. "As far as he was concerned the only thing that marred his happiness was the toughness of the steaks they had at the boarding house, and that they were tough nobody could deny. But he was equal to the occasion there as he had proved himself to be at the mill. "'Madam,' he said one day to the landlady, 'if you will let me take the steaks you buy before you cook them I will make them just as tender as can be without any cost to you whatso-"Now, he had paid his board regularly, and he was at that moment virtually the star boarder. The landlady handed him the next morning without hesitation the bundle of steaks just as it came from the butcher, and the hammer boss just took 'em over to the mill, this being before the regular starting time in the morning, and, adjusting one of the four ton hammers to about the right gauge, started it up and ran the steaks a couple of times under the bammer.

"Good? Why, they were just simply beautiful, and every morning after that the genial hammer boss used to run across to the mill before breakfast and and forth once under the four ton hammer. The fame of the landlady's tender steaks grew rapidly, as did also, naturally, the number of her boarders. And so she accumulated wealth."-New York Sun.

A Bye Wanted.

Our consul in Birmingham says that several years ago one of the Barbers, of threadmaking fame, told him that the discoverer of a fast black dye for linen thread could command his own price. Examine the thread holding the buttons in men's clothing, and you will see that after a short time the black disappears, and even new linen thread has not sufficient depth of color.
